

Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center

A full-service academic medical center on a completely modernized 130-acre campus, Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center traces its history of patient care to the founding of its ancestor, the Baltimore City and County Almshouse, in 1773; to its decades of service as an innovative municipal facility known as Baltimore City Hospitals; and to its 1984 acquisition by The Johns Hopkins Hospital. Johns Hopkins Bayview physicians hold full-time faculty positions in the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. The medical center campus is home to three National Institutes of Health Intramural Research Program institutes: National Institute on Aging, National Institute on Drug Abuse and National Human Genome Research Institute.

Nationally and Internationally Recognized Care

Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center is home to a nationally renowned geriatrics center and a state-designated level II trauma center and level IIIb neonatal intensive care unit that are part of the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems. The Johns Hopkins Burn Center, the only adult burn trauma and surgical facility in the region, is accredited by the American Burn Association and is federally designated as a model system of state-of-the-art, coordinated care for burn patients.

Part of a Premier, Integrated System

Johns Hopkins Bayview Medical Center is a member of Johns Hopkins Medicine, one of the world's premier, integrated health systems, with six hospitals, four community-based health care and surgery centers, more than 40 primary and specialty care outpatient sites throughout the region, and managed care and home care services. Through Johns Hopkins Medicine International, there are numerous strategic collaborations, affiliate and management agreements overseas, and multiple short-term consulting projects.
